Oakland's registration for selective service will run over 25,000.

This was assured today by noon, when all the country had been filled in, in practically every tent in the city a far heavier registration than that of 1917 was reported. It could not be arrived at and was not until probably late tomorrow but registrars serving this time who also served on the 1917 boards said that without a doubt, the registration will far exceed that of the first signing of Oakland's manpower.

Throughout the morning long lines of men were signed up in a case slower than ten minutes to a man, and this time only in the case of foreigners who understood little English. All signs, however, could be understood through the aid of interpreters sent to the city hall where the interpreters were at work.

BIG RUSH OCCURS IN EARLY MORNING HOURS.

The biggest rush was early this morning, when workers sought to register before leaving for work. Throughout this morning, however, practically every registration booth in Oakland was jammed, and indications are that Oakland's registration may be heavier than was that of 1917.

The clerk set 25,000 as a conservative estimate of the men from 18 to 45 expected to register, and suggested that the total would probably fall between this number and 30,000. The county is expected to register at least 40,000 men.

That Oakland's registration machinery, as designed by Deputy City Clerk Frank Merritt and J. H. Cummings, head of the draft board committee, is perfect was demonstrated early in this morning's registration. The crowds were handled with dispatch, the registration clerks, trained previously and fully familiar with every move, handling the registrants with lightninglike precision. The rain cast no damper on Oakland's enthusiasm. The city's manpower turned out gladly, and the rush exceeded even the expectations of the draft officials.

REGISTRATION CARDS TO BE SENT OUT TOMORROW.

Tomorrow will see the second stage of the task of segregating the men in the new draft, when today's registration cards will be given serial numbers and the segregated. The questionnaires will be sent first to registrants from 19 to 21 and 31 to 37. These questionnaires will go out as soon as possible, but the men may be classified at once, in preparation for the October call, when the first of the newly registered men will be started for the camps.

A call to the men was issued today by Provost Marshal General Crowder's office to retain only "key men" in industries as essential, if possible, or in other words make claims only for the men about whom new organizations can be built. Employers are to be put on their honor in this matter, it was stated, but the men may be classified at once, in preparation for the October call, when the first of the newly registered men will be started for the camps.

"FLOODERS" ARE MANY; PROMISE TO MAIL ADDRESS.

Boaters, or men without family ties or permanent place of residence, have broken all records in the present registration in Oakland, hundreds of them.

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN LORRAINE, Sept. 12.—
(Reuter's).—The Germans now are falling back to the fronts on each side of the St. Mihiel salient.

The French are advancing on a thirty-five-kilometer (21-mile) arc between the points of the American attack. They are starting the encirclement of St. Mihiel.

By FRED S. FERGUSON,
United Press Staff Correspondent

WITH THE AMERICANS ON LORRAINE FRONT, Sept. 12.—
The first American offensive started at 5 o'clock this morning between the Meuse and the Moselle rivers. The attack was carried out by the first army under the direct command of Gen. Pershing. The Americans have captured ten villages and advanced several kilometers on a fifteen-kilometer front (about ten miles).

The immediate object of the attack is limited to a specified line. Tanks are in action.

The greatest number of American troops and artillery yet involved in any single operation is engaged in the battle.

The Americans and French also attacked on the western side of the St. Mihiel salient, pushing the enemy back in the region of Fresnes (at the northern base of the salient). This action was on a front of twelve kilometers.

The French are on the peak of the salient, keeping pace with the Americans, pinching in the side.

More than 100 tanks manned by Americans aided in smashing the powerful, concrete reinforced line of the enemy in the region of St. Baussant (twelve miles east of St. Mihiel). The tanks drove forward at sunrise, behind a dense smoke screen.

The town of Montsec (seven miles east of St. Mihiel) was kept shrouded in a smoke screen all morning long to prevent effective German observation.

The weather is ideal for the offensive. The allies have complete supremacy in the air.

The number of prisoners taken is probably large. Indefinite reports at the time of cabling this despatch say that groups of fifty to one hundred are passing through villages near the front. Many of the prisoners are from the crack tenth division which participated in the Marne offensive last July.

From the moment the first American went over the top today reports flowed back steadily telling of increasing successes.

The attack followed four hours of the most terrific artillery preparation, starting at 1 a. m. There was rain during the night and the flashes from hundreds of guns concentrated around the salient brilliantly lighted up the storm clouds.

Everything within the salient's fifty kilometer arc was under fire. In addition to the artillery bombardment, airplanes dropped bombs on all railroad centers, bridges, hangars and munition supply centers in the salient, which is one of the strongest fortified points on the western front.

American infantry attacked behind a heavy rolling barrage timed to go forward 100 meters every forty minutes.

Artillery and tanks so smashed the powerful enemy first line that little infantry resistance was encountered. The first village was taken by the Americans within forty-five minutes. Woods and other strong points were enveloped.

AIR RESERVE FIGHTS ALONG WITH INFANTRY.

The first army's air reserve, working with the French, assumed the offensive with the infantry. At 9 a. m.

Allied Gains Reported From Flanders, While French Hold Their Ground Despite the Teuton Counter Attack

LONDON, Sept. 12.—Atilly, Vermand and Vandelles, north of St. Quentin, have been captured by the British, Field Marshal Haig reported today.

On the front before Cambrai the British crossed the Canal du Nord. Attacking during the night, the British seized the powerfully fortified railway triangle southwest of La Bassée, in Flanders.

The statement:

"We crossed the Canal du Nord northwest of Havrincourt, and established ourselves on the west bank of the canal east and north of Moeuvres. During the night we attacked and captured the strongly fortified position known as 'the railway triangle' southwest of La Bassée, taking a number of prisoners and machine guns."

Determined German resistance, taking the form of sharp counter-attacks at Cambrai and British assaults on positions before the Hindenburg line were reported in night official statements of the allied war offices. The fighting was only light sniping and maneuvering for position, compared with the heavy battles of past weeks.

PRISONERS ARE TAKEN NORTH OF EPEHY.

Field Marshal Haig announced his troops had advanced north of Epehy on the Hindenburg line, taking some prisoners.

Near Vermand, northwest of St. Quentin, the British pushed forward during the day. The ridge west of Gouzeaucourt, held by the British, was again attacked, but Haig, by a surprise attack, captured the German artillery near Havrincourt wood on the Cambrai front is developing "considerable activity," Haig said.

In Flanders the British further improved their positions.

French troops during Wednesday merely held their gains against counter-attacks. Six of these were hurled at the allies' line near La Faux and Colles-Sur-Alsne. The allies, including Americans, menaced the Chemin des Dames and the enemy's Alsne river positions from the western flank.

Attacking down the high road from St. Quentin to Ham, the Germans struck French forces south east of Roupy. It was announced, but were beaten and repulsed.

Berlin's night report said the day on the battle front passed quietly.

LONDON, Sept. 12, 3:35 p. m.—A new British drive was opened south of the Scarpe river today, according to information reaching here from the battlefield this afternoon. (The Scarpe river lies east of Arras, where the British and Picardy battlefronts join up.)

GERMAN ALLEGES ALLIED FAILURES.

BERLIN, via London, Sept. 12.—British forces attacking the German lines on the Flanders front near Arras and the Chemin des Dames, according to today's announcement from army headquarters, British success along the Canal du Nord line between Marquion and Havrincourt likewise failed, the statement says.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—As news flashed over the wires today of a great American offensive toward the Rhine, 13,000,000 Americans between the ages of 18 and 45 marched to register, a proud reserve army to back the boys "over there."

General Pershing could not have timed his effort better than to launch it on the day when America at home was mobbing to enlist millions more for the victory army.

Throughout the nation extras on the streets were bought by prospective registrants and read as they marched to enroll.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—America's new army passed from the initial stage today. In 447 separate places throughout the United States the man-power of the nation between the ages of 18 to 45 and 31 to 45 lined up to announce "Here! to Uncle Sam."

With bands playing and the national colors in evidence from every flagstaff, the men of the victory army presented themselves for enrollment so that the promise of the general to the allies that an army of 4,000,000 Americans will be in France by July 1 next with another army of more than 1,000,000—all fighting men—waiting here in reserve can be kept to the letter.

Reports received by Major General Enoch H. Crowder, provost marshal general, who has planned the entire making of the selective army of the United States—that now in service and that to come—indicate that the enrollment everywhere is proceeding in a speedy, orderly manner of which the entire country may be proud.

Here in Washington all members of the government who had not already enrolled at some other place were early in line. Government departments had been shut down to give the men a chance. The Senate adjourned to allow employees to register while the House registered its eligibles in the office of the sergeant-at-arms.

REGISTRATION TAKEN AS SUPREMACY ANSWER.

The words of the President that this enrollment of man-power was the supreme answer had carried weight everywhere.

It was accepted by the officials in charge of the draft that there would be a far less percentage of men who failed to register today than in either previous two enrollments.

The words of the President, of course, the fact that today's candidates had the benefit of the experience through which the men of 21 and 31 were made ready for active service.

TOTAL MAY EXCEED THIRTEEN MILLIONS.

Estimates at the office of the provost marshal general were that today's enrollment will swell the total registered available military material to the gross total of 23,400,000. While in making this estimate the statisticians let it be known that they expected today's enrollment to total 12,658,973, there were many officials familiar with conditions who said that the total would exceed thirteen millions.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—There were 1000 men in line when the principal registration booth in the heart of the East Side opened, and nearly as many at every other booth in that section.

General and Staff Killed by Flyers

LONDON, Sept. 12.—General Huhn of the German army and a majority of his staff were killed last week in the vicinity of St. Quentin by British aviators, according to the Hamburger Fremdenblatt, says a Geneva despatch to the Express. A number of other German generals narrowly escaped a similar fate.

SURPRISE BLOW NETS PRISONERS ABOVE AILETTE

PARIS, Sept. 12.—"North of the Ailette a surprise attack by us captured some prisoners," the war office announced today. "In the regions of Rheims and Presnes there was artillery fire. In the Champagne and in the Vosges, two enemy surprise attacks were repulsed."

PARIS, Sept. 12.—Signs of the withdrawal of German forces from Venduill, about four and a half miles north of La Fere, to Moy, about five miles northeast of Venduill, have been discovered by French patrols, advancing along the Oise canal, northeast of Travecy, it was learned here today.

This movement on the part of the enemy, if completely carried out, would give the French possession of the La Fere-St. Quentin road for a distance of more than thirteen miles.

Only raids and artiller activity was reported by the French war office today.

"North of the Ailette river raids were carried out and some prisoners were captured."

"There was artillery activity in the region of Rheims and Presnes."

"Two enemy raids were repulsed in the Champagne district and in the Vosges mountains."

RAINFALL

At 2 o'clock this afternoon, according to announcement by Chas. Burchhalter, 2.30 inches of rain had fallen.

SPILLS LEFT BY EFFAYN FIGHT GROW

PARIS, Sept. 12.—It will be weeks before a complete inventory of guns, rifles, ammunition and stores captured by the allies in their victorious drive on the Montdidier-Amiens front can be made.

Each day squads of soldiers, detailed to gather up the so-called "spoils," add to the gigantic collection. The mass of the abandoned material is the best proof of the rapidity with which the enemy bolted before the allied advances. The machine-generators, charged and in position for firing, were taken by the hundreds. From ten to fifteen of these said machine guns were abandoned by the demoralized enemy, while on all sides there were hundreds of boxes of ammunition. The heavy guns reached by the allied infantry before the enemy could remove them probably will number more than 150, when the final total is reached.

But the most notable gain was the munition and prisoners that the allied forces captured. Material of all sorts, which the Germans had worked weeks in bringing to the front, was taken in wholesale lots. The retreating army of Von Hitler had attempted to save some of this material. When its retreat was not as fast as the allied advance wagons and auto trucks and stores were abandoned on the roads, which were so congested that a vehicle of any sort only proved a hindrance. Instead of an aide to flight. The material, found on the roads, at the edges of the fields and in recaptured villages, includes everything from front line entanglements, food and field kitchens, to complete equipment for field hospitals.

OLD RUINS

Antiques are interesting, but not in the dental profession.

Years ago colleges were stronger for dead languages than for business courses. In other words, it was silly to go to college to become a business man. Today commercial economy courses are among the most prominent in the college curriculum. Why?

Do you remember the old-time drug stores with the colored bottles among the other old ruins in the front windows and the bottles on the shelves all labeled in dead languages? Now in place of the antiques and the mysterious, Latin attracted windows, and all labels printed in plain English. Why?

Not many years ago the barbers did a lot of dental work. Then came a period when dentistry was reduced to a science. Every part of dentistry has advanced, not excepting prices which have soared to ethereal heights. Why?

Dental prices in California will never go any higher than they are now. Why?

Because for 22 years I have been carrying on a right fight against the prohibitive high prices asked by most dentists. I have always been opposed to the "table be set" and "all the traffic will be here" stuff.

There is an average that can be struck in dentistry as in any other trade. I strike this average and it allows me a fair profit.

I state "There is no responsible dentist in California making a better profit crown at any price than I can make you for $5.00 and I mean it!"

No wits, no delays, out-of-town patients' work finished same day if necessary.

WOMEN OF ALAMEDA COUNTY AND THEIR WORK

By GEORGIA G. BORDWELL

Occasionally little stories of devotion to the Great Cause and sacrifice of personal comfort come to light at Red Cross headquarters that show the spirit of the women of Alameda county to win in their devotion and sacrifice of personal comfort overseas.

There are seventeen girls down at the Alameda Lamp factory who average three sweaters each month. They never have time to go to headquarters, to gain inspiration from seeing the immense amount of work to be done. They send their leader, Miss Hansen, who every week gets the wool and takes it to the girls.

The auxiliary at the California Cotton Mills, Miss M. Perry, leader, who has 27, they, too, average three garments apiece a week.

Mrs. Phineas White, with snow-white hair, walks to headquarters, gets her wool and takes it home, amidst numerous duties she has found time to produce two helmets weekly since the beginning of the war.

There is a little dressmaker who, having a young daughter to support, and young daughters need and want so many things, gives every Monday to the Red Cross. She is a good girl, and when the door is opened, and sits at a machine all day making hospital garments in a most expert fashion.

Great credit has been given to those who, during the War Fund drive, gave the pay of a day to the cause; still less credit has been given to the self-supporting woman who regularly gives the pay of a day every week.

The Red Cross sends out a call today for surgical dressing workers for headquarters. The dressings can be given out to auxiliaries, but must be made under the supervision of the head of the department.

Herbert Hoover, head of the Food Commission, has given the word of the American nation that not only will we eat but combat hunger in every cause, but that we will send 50% more food to the Allies than we did last year, according to Mr. Robert Burdette, who spoke this week at the Council of Defense conference.

In order to do this, the women will be compelled to assume the burden. The Government can do nothing without the cooperation of every housekeeper in the land.

Full details of the new wheat saving program for the housewives of the State of California have been given out by Acting Federal Food Commissioner Preston McKinney. The essential changes in the program are:

1. Breads for each day and each meal made of one pound of wheat, and the elimination of the two former wheatless days and the wheatless evening meal.

2. Abolishment of the list of wheat substitutes. Rice and breakfast foods are no longer substitutes.

3. Abolishment of the rule which restricted flour purchases in towns and cities to a quantity of one bushel each purchase and in rural districts to one-quarter of a barrel.

4. Abolishment of the 50-50 rule which provided for the production of one pound of substitutes to four pounds of wheat flour.

Mrs. Burdette says: "Once more the development of the war has shown that the women are the backbone of the nation. They are the ones who must make the sacrifices and who must do the work."

THE THIRTEENTH COMMANDMENT

By Rupert Hughes

Daphne and Bayard, left alone, did not dare to speak. They felt drawn together by the family distress; and Lella seemed to be a foreigner. But they were afraid to anger her.

Bayard took a safer line. She grumbled, "How are you getting along at your office?"

Daphne felt unable to intrude her own troubles on his. She shrugged her shoulders. It is a kind of white lie, she thought.

Bayard was too harassed to interest himself further. "Hang on to your job as long as you can, old girl. You're the only one of us that can get a job or earn a cent. That's the advantage of being a pretty girl."

Daphne was almost moved to tell him some of the disadvantages of being a pretty girl, but she felt that the time was unfit for exploiting her own woes. She waited for someone to disclose them to her.

Lella came in, arrayed in her very finest. She was smiling in the contentment of beauty at its best. "When you ask credit you've got to look as if you had it," she said.

Bayard's doleful good-bys went out with Daphne. She was going to take a taxi, but she had no money. She asked Daphne for a loan, but Daphne shook her head and said:

"You flatter me. 'Well walk,' said Lella. 'It looks richer than riding in a bus. A millionaires walks for exercise, but there's no exercise in carrying a coat.'"

Daphne waited to tell Lella about her adventure, but Lella had too many of her own miseries to recount. She walked less and less briskly the nearer they came to Daphne's door.

Bayard waited to tell Lella about her adventure, but Lella had too many of her own miseries to recount. She walked less and less briskly the nearer they came to Daphne's door.

Griffith and Miss

Gish Invited Here

D. W. Griffith famous photoplay producer, and Lillian Gish, star of the Griffith productions, may be guests of Oakland's motion picture operators when, at the Oakland T. & D. next Monday, they stage their great Red Cross benefit, the proceeds of which are to build the Red Cross hut on the City Hall plaza. Invitations were sent today to the noted producer by Chairman Ben Givens of the committee, after a consultation with J. J. Glickman, Griffith's personal representative in the bay region.

All attaches at the T. & D. theater have volunteered their time for the day. This hut is to be erected by the labor of the Building Trades Council, the carpenters and builders to give their services.

SHIP FITTER BANKRUPT. SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—Guy L. Hall, of Berkeley, whose occupation is ship fitting, filed a petition in bankruptcy in the Federal District court, listing liabilities of $885 and exempted assets of $100. He is insured by a policy of life insurance policies in favor of his wife.

The relief of Lucknow and of Peking were nothing to the achievement of Duthie and the other heroes who escaped from the siege of Europe by devious ways and brought home the sacred messages of the fashion gods.

Duthie was under a great deal of stress in a few days and he had replicas of the models," he said. "I didn't forget either of you while I was in Paris. I have a gown for you, Mrs. Kip, and I will break your heart with joy. You'd murder to get it. And as for you, Miss Kip—well, you'll simply be indecently demure in the one I call 'Lillian'."

Daphne was a trifle shocked, but Lella's eyes filled with tears at the mockery of such talk. She moaned: "I didn't come to buy. I came to apologize and beg for mercy. I owe you a lot of money and I haven't a cent."

"Who has? What of it? Nobody's paying anybody. My twenty-five thousand dollars is mostly credit."

"But I had an urgent letter from your bookkeeper, or somebody."

"Don't mind her. She gets excited. Nobody pays me. You come in and get another gown and you'll catch a million."

It was hard for Duthie to keep his clients clear in his memory. Lella rebuked him, "I already have a husband."

"Don't say that slyly and unashamed. Only one? How exclusive! He must be young and handsome."

"He is."

"Well, then we'll have to help you to keep him. I'll sell you another gown, one of those that I call the Husband-Holders."

"But I can't afford it."

"And I can't afford to have my children going around in last year's rags. You do as you're told and come next week. I'll get my money out of you some day. Trust me for that."

Lella felt a rapturous desire to kiss him and call him names of gratitude, but she was too much of a lady to do so. He was generous by impulse, but the thoughts of tailors are long, long thoughts.

Daphne sat thinking, but not of clothes. The labor problem had almost defeminized her. She was studying the models as they lounged about the shop. Suddenly she spoke. "Oh, Mr. Duthie, how can I tell you a model error?"

"How can I tell, my dear? Besides, what business is it of mine? Oh, beg your pardon. See her blush. The first blush I have seen in my shop for a year. I will give you a new dress, I know what you mean. You mean what salary do I pay. Common clothes cost fifteen or sixteen dollars. Better lookers get better pay. You're worth a thousand a week, at least. Want a job?"

"Yes."

"What's the matter?" he said. "Has he run off with another girl, or do you expect to go fishing for a millionaire in my pond?"

"I need the money. I have had hard luck," Daphne said it so solemnly that he, too, grew solemn.

"What's the matter? I've got more girls now than I need. Nobody as beautiful as you, of course, but—I suppose I could let some one go."

"I don't think that."

"Neither could I. Well, I'll squeeze you in somewhere. But I can't pay you as much as you are worth. Would—um—twenty dollars a week interest you?"

"It would fascinate me."

"All right, you're engaged. You can begin next Monday." He turned to Lella. "Do you want a job, too?"

"Yes, I would like to be a model. My eyes were blacker than ever with rage, and her red-white cheeks curdled with shame. She could not trust herself to speak. Her brunette beauty had the look of a thundercloud.

When she and Daphne had seen their departure, Lella stared not speak to Daphne on the way home. She dared not speak to her at all.

Loyal American
Is 'Von Strohm'
In This Thriller

GEORGE SIEGMANN and LILLIAN CISH

G. A. Siegmann Plays German Militarist in "Hearts of the World" at Orpheum

An expert at camouflage or in "make-up" as it is termed in theatricals is George A. Siegmann, who enacts the role of Von Strohm, the German militarist, in D. W. Griffith's "Hearts of the World" at the Orpheum this week. As he appears on the screen Siegmann is for all the world the cruel, despotic Hun in all his friendliness and resembles Von Hindenburg so closely that he could almost pass for the latter. On the other hand, picture Siegmann as the loyal American in real life. He recently earned a commission as an officer in the signal corps, and is scheduled for active service in the near future. Siegmann appears exclusively in D. W. Griffith productions and is the famous director's chief assistant. His characterization in "Hearts of the World" with his former success, the mulatto lieutenant-governor, Lynch, in "The Birth of a Nation," "Hearts of the World" engagement ends on Saturday and will be followed at the Orpheum by the regular vaudeville season which will be inaugurated Sunday.

SALVATION ARMY DRIVE NEAR END

With more than 300 women enlisted as volunteer workers, the Salvation Army this morning inaugurated the last leg of its week's campaign for funds with which to carry on its splendid war work on the western front in France by invading the downtown district. Adding in the drive, which is intended to reach every pedestrian and every office building in Oakland's business center today, tomorrow and Saturday is the Oakland Federation of Mothers' Clubs with its entire membership. More than 100 other volunteer women workers also are assisting. Booths are being established on every street corner along Broadway today and between now and Saturday night, the women workers will seek to raise approximately $15,000—this being the balance which will be necessary to make up Oakland's quota of $25,000 in the present nationwide campaign. "The Salvation Army drive has the endorsement of every mother who has a boy 'over there,'" says Mrs. Edward Morgan Jones, president of the Oakland Federation of Mothers' Clubs, who will direct the women workers of that organization during the last three days of the Oakland drive. "The words of praise which Oakland boys write back from France to the Salvation Army and the heroic work they are doing under practically the same battle conditions which confront the soldiers themselves in the land of approval which marks real merit."

"There are many members of the Mothers' Clubs in Oakland who have enlisted their sons from their sons who have come to France, in which the highest appreciation is voiced for the humanitarian service which is being rendered them by the Army. When they come back, the Salvation Army will mean something more to them than the old application which was frequently applied to them of 'street corner pauper singers.'"

Loyal Italians Will Aid War Sufferers

For the relief of Italian war sufferers, the entire proceeds of the Italian Unification Day celebration to be held in San Francisco on September 20, 21 and 22, will be devoted, according to a decision by the executive committee planning the details of the official observance of the national holiday of Italy. Word has been received by the committee from army and navy officials, proffering their co-operation. The Italian and Naval Training Station bands will participate in the allegorical parade Sunday morning.

With the opening of the bazaar of flags in Washington Square park, the celebration will be launched Friday evening, September 20. In the Washington Square Theater that night exercises will be held in commemoration of the holiday. Prominent Italian orators will address the gathering and a concert will follow.

The festa will continue Saturday and Sunday, when the celebration will be held with all the Italian societies taking part.

"Berlin" Is Wrecked By Embryo Soldiers

Appreciation of the Red Cross was expressed by 220 boys who went to Camp Kearney on the train that left Oakland Sunday morning, when a column of boys, carrying to $65.75 was donated to the fund.

W. J. Liebrecht, who went on the trip, and who has just returned, tells the story of the boys' trip on the way down. About thirty miles out of Los Angeles the train stopped at a watering station bearing the name "Berlin." There was nothing left but the water tank when the train ended, and bits of the town were carried on as souvenirs. At Fresno the train was delayed an hour at about midnight while the boys' parade and song songs, and the same performance was staged at Los Angeles. There are about 15,000 recruits at camp and trains are arriving daily with others. "The Y. M. C. A. has fine buildings there and Liebrecht says they are doing great things to make the boys feel at home."

McCormick Wins Illinois Nomination

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Medill McCormick, according to the ratio of early returns, has defeated Mayor William Hale Thompson for the Republican senatorial nomination by an estimated plurality of 60,000. Thompson, while running strong in Cook county and Chicago, where it is indicated he will receive a plurality of 18,000, is far behind in the country districts, which are piling up a total for McCormick which led him to claim the nomination last night by 75,000.

In the Democratic count Senator J. Hamilton Lewis is leading his opponent, Monroe, by three to one.

10,000 Stenographers Called for War

Every Person at a Typewriter Backs Up Many Yankees in the Trenches

Backed up by a vast civilian army at home, our big guns roar, our machine guns hum viciously, as they pour their hail of victory into the gray ranks of the Hun.

Every shot sped on its way, from rifle, machine gun, field gun, mortar, or naval piece, represents the ultimate result of organization.

Every one of the stenographers and clerks working day and night in Uncle Sam's War Department is engaged in the fight with the Hun. As directly engaged as though in person on the firing line.

Every shot fired, every meal eaten, every shot to be fired, every meal to be eaten, by our boys "over there" must be systematically arranged for and recorded.

Every piece of equipment—every item in the hundreds of thousands of items that enter into making a victorious war—must pass through the hands of the civilian army in the War Department; must pass through the hands of the clerks and stenographers.

That shot, which has found its mark in the heart of a merciless Hun, was itemized before it winged its righteous way, and what it achieved for freedom must be recorded as the final result.

Every letter, every order, every piece of clerical work whatever its form, is transformed into the stern sinews of war—into ammunition and supplies.

As the hum of the typewriter batteries grows louder and louder in our War Department, it becomes more easily heard in the land of the Hun. The clack, clack of the typewriter keys is echoed in the bark, bark of our machine guns; swells to terrific din as the shells of our superguns drop true and send to damnation the hated men in those ranks of gray.

"10,000 More Stenographers!"

Who Will Answer the Call?

It is the patriotic duty of every stenographer qualified to do Uncle Sam's work to answer the call at once. They undoubtedly will.

From the ranks of the offices will come the experienced stenographers who will make up this 10,000 so urgently needed. Our business men, of all classes, representing the largest interests and the smallest, will cheerfully give up to Uncle Sam the services of these splendid volunteers.

An Appeal for Enrollment

Proportionately speaking, the call of the Government for 10,000 stenographers is one of the largest quotas yet asked from any calling.

The result will be that business houses will have to replace those who answer the call. To keep business conditions as near normal as possible is one of the most patriotic things we can do. If stenographers are not trained to take the places of those who are trained, and who are going into the service of the War Department, there will be serious consequences.

Every person who is not now required in some defined activity by our government should seriously consider the situation and their obligation.

As a matter of personal profit alone, such training presents an opportunity unheard-of in the annals of employment of this character.

Delay is dangerous to your interests and to the interests of your country. Arrange to enroll now. We will heartily welcome your inquiries.

You Must Take Their Place

You must take the place of one of those who go.

You become immediately necessary to the carrying on of business; a more peaceful calling, perhaps, but one hundred per cent patriotic.

Heald's Business College realizes its obligation in this matter. It realizes that it, too, must speed up and fit YOU for service quickly, thoroughly, to take the place of those who go to the front in all lines of business, in the War Department at Washington, in the Navy Department as yeomanettes, in the Marine Corps, the aviation schools, the shipyards and all the other forms of war activities.

YOU also will soon leave a place to be filled by someone else when Uncle Sam again sends out the call: "More Stenographers!"

And that call will come again. It will come many times more ere we have won the war. Every hundred, every thousand, every million added to our splendid army, makes necessary the recruiting of more stenographers.

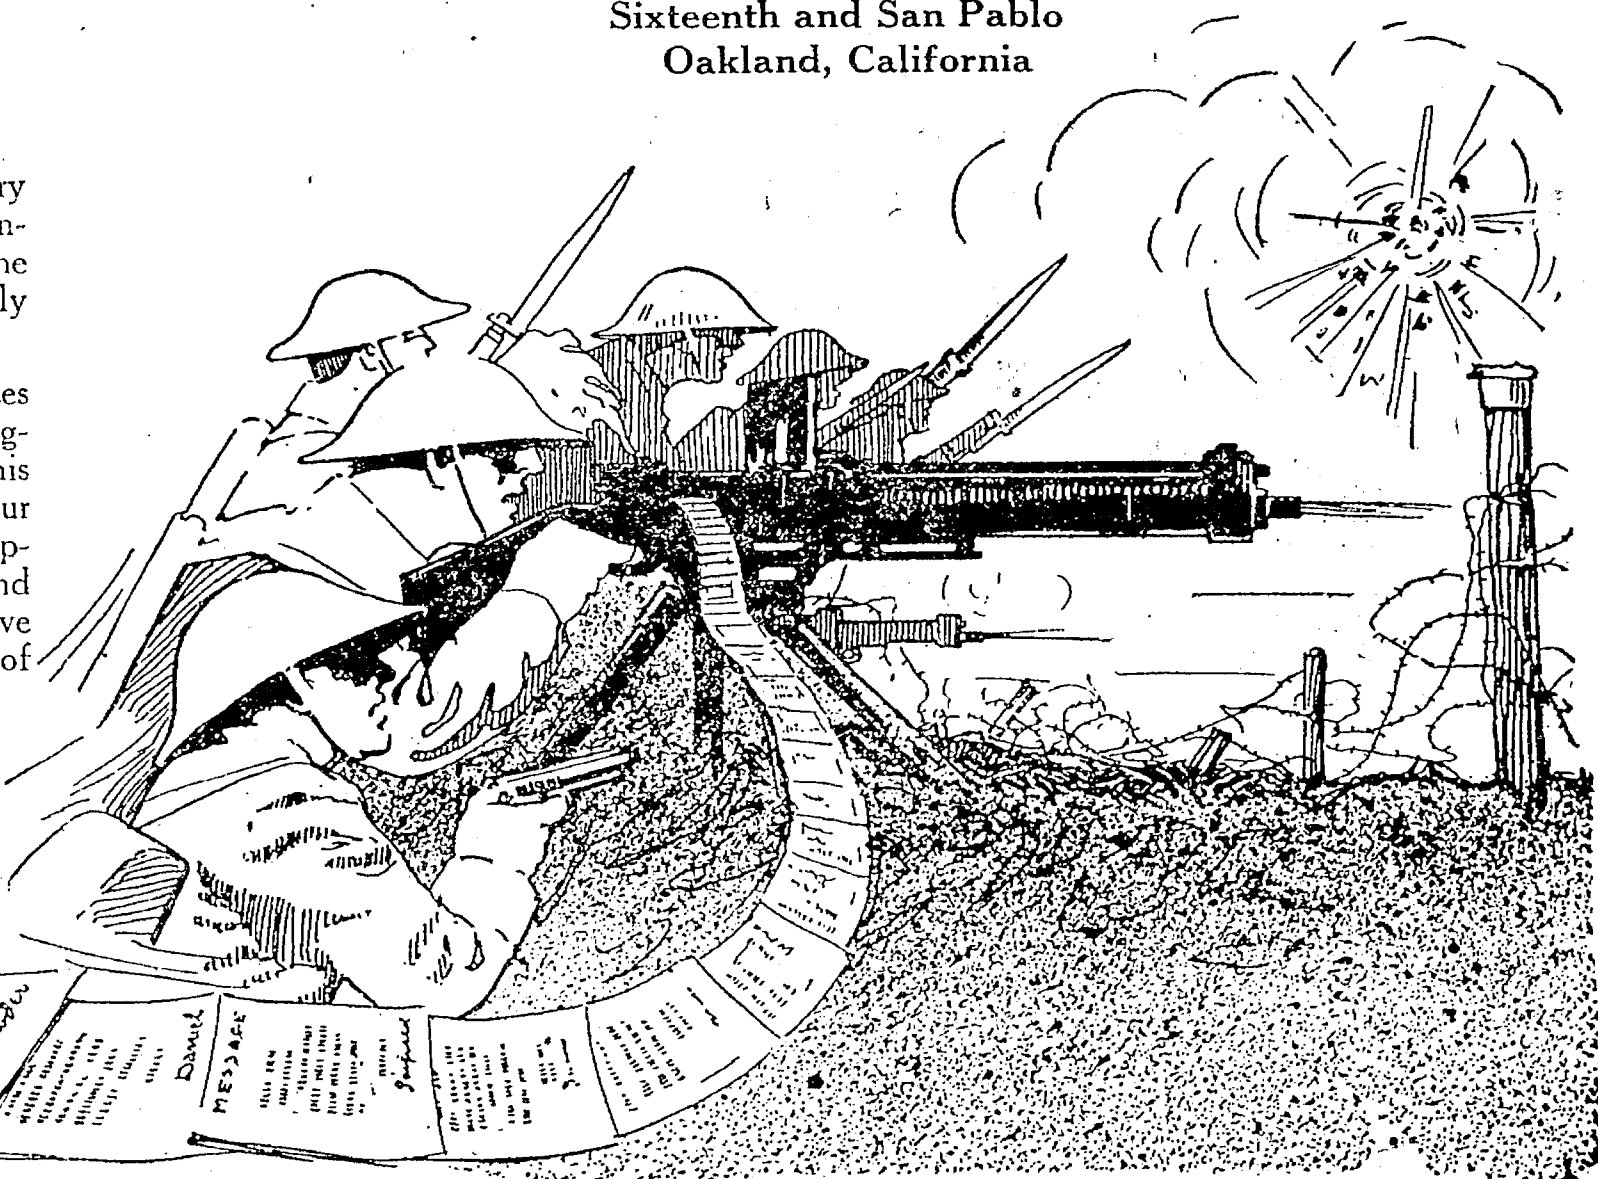

Five million men are to be in readiness on the western front "over there" for the march to Berlin in the spring. By that time many more than 10,000 stenographers will be recruited for work in the War Department alone.

Will YOU be one of those who are backing up the men in the trenches?

MRS. PLANK IS HIGHLY PLEASED

Gaining Weight and Strength Rapidly Since Taking Tanlac.

Still another comes forward and adds her voice to the hundreds who have already endorsed the wonderful medicine, Tanlac. This time it is Mrs. Elizabeth Plank of 604 Remond street, Los Angeles. Mrs. Plank called at the Owl Drug Store, Fifth Avenue and Broadway, recently and in telling of the benefits she has derived from the use of Tanlac, said:

"Ever since I bought my first bottle of Tanlac, about three weeks ago, I have been on the road to recovery and I want to do my part in letting all suffering people know what a fine medicine it is. I have suffered from nervousness and stomach trouble for the past two years, but I have been able to get to where I couldn't even digest milk and other light foods properly. My nerves are normal and I can sleep soundly and I have gained weight and strength. I have been able to get to where I couldn't even digest milk and other light foods properly. My nerves are normal and I can sleep soundly and I have gained weight and strength. I have been able to get to where I couldn't even digest milk and other light foods properly. My nerves are normal and I can sleep soundly and I have gained weight and strength."

"I felt that I must get something, if possible, to help me. I bought a bottle of Tanlac and began to feel good results almost at once. My nerves are almost normal and I can sleep soundly all night and don't even hear the alarm clock when it rings in the morning. I feel better than I have for years. I have gained weight and strength. I have been able to get to where I couldn't even digest milk and other light foods properly. My nerves are normal and I can sleep soundly and I have gained weight and strength."

"The government bureau cannot make labor," said Post. "All that we can do is distribute it properly."

Post told of the formation of the department of labor and of its various bureaus, and went into the history of the War Labor Board, half employer and half union men, under whom the present principles of settlement of labor disputes are being formulated.

"There should be no strikes," said Post. "All matters of dispute can be settled directly by the War Labor Board and I can place my voice in support of the government's war labor policy which will not be tolerated."

"Only one firm has defied the War Labor Board's rulings—the Western Union, in the recent telegraphers' dispute. And as a result of their defiance of the government's war labor policy will not be tolerated."

Defending the principle of collective bargaining by labor, Post said that the taking of a man from industry or placing him there affects the whole body of the laboring class, hence that body is directly interested and entitled to a voice in the matter. The business man is the customer, buying labor from the worker, he held, and the workers are entitled to "go together" just as business men do, to outline cooperative trading. He scored the binoculars and held it unnecessary.

"I predict a revolutionary movement in the minds of the people, which will lead to the destruction of the autocratic rule under which the freedom of the people of Germany has been crushed. We intend to make Germany free together with the rest of the world, and safe in time to come for peace."

STRIKES ARE PERIL TO U.S., SAYS POST

New means of cooperating with the United States Labor Bureau are the general topic today among members of the Manufacturers' Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce and union labor leaders, following the visit to Oakland of Louis P. Post, first assistant secretary of labor, who today spoke at the Labor Shipyard, to the workers, after having yesterday delivered the message of the government to business men and labor men, meeting together in the Chamber of Commerce.

"Anyone who seeks labor other than from the United States Labor Bureau, and any laborer who seeks a job other than through this bureau, is obstructing the work of the United States department of labor," warned Post. He said that the private labor agency meant interference with the government program for the distribution of labor, and, therefore, with the successful prosecution of the war.

"The government bureau cannot make labor," said Post. "All that we can do is distribute it properly."

U. S. TO PROBE BIG RUSH TO GET MARRIED

There has been no investigation by the department of Justice into the reason prompting an unusual number of men past the age of 30 to secure marriage licenses in Alameda county, and Marriage License Clerk Gemmell has been too busy issuing licenses to inquire into the reasons behind the rush. He says that since the new draft regulation went into effect 140 men have applied for licenses at his office. Of this number above 30 percent were past the age of 30.

In San Francisco, according to the license clerk, agents of the department have been asking for the reason for the rush, in which 385 licenses have been issued since September 3, and of which number the proportion of men past thirty is out of all ratio to their number heretofore. A list of the latest has been asked for by the department, he says, for investigation of the phenomena.

Tuttle, Max Cox and Newton Best became captains.

BALLOT TEST CASE HALTED BY HOLIDAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—The Supreme Court not being in session today, the case pending to test the constitutionality of the State primary law was not argued. The proceedings were filed yesterday by Rolph's attorneys on behalf of Frank N. Rodgers, candidate for the assembly from the thirty-second district, San Francisco. Rodgers, like the mayor, was registered as a Republican, defeated by his own party, but won the Democratic nomination.

The meeting of the Democratic State Central Committee yesterday was far from harmonious. But fifty-seven of the 224 members were present. There were only fifty-three proxies. A resolution was immediately passed endorsing Francis J. Heney as the Democratic candidate in case the Supreme Court should hold that Rolph cannot qualify. It is the general opinion of the attorneys that if the court holds that Rolph cannot qualify, Heney will be likewise eliminated. As soon as the Supreme Court renders a decision, legal action will be required if the State ballots are to be printed in time. Should it become necessary to name an independent candidate, sufficient signatures must immediately be obtained, and only those who did not participate in the primary election can sign such petitions. The names of several are being mentioned as possible independent candidates. All aspirants, however, will await the decision of the Supreme Court before taking action.

QUEEN CONTEST AT LAND SHOW NEARING CLOSE

My, but there are some busy girls in Oakland. But, like the fabled pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, some girl is going to win the queen of the morning soon and find herself the queen of a court of her allies and—the owner of a Chevrolet car. A resolution was immediately passed endorsing Francis J. Heney as the Democratic candidate in case the Supreme Court should hold that Rolph cannot qualify. It is the general opinion of the attorneys that if the court holds that Rolph cannot qualify, Heney will be likewise eliminated. Investigation Over Fire Wreck Begun

An investigation into the cause of the accident at Seventh and Henry streets last evening when a Southern Pacific electric train crashed into a hook and ladder truck while the fire department was responding to an alarm, has been ordered by Fire Chief Elliott Whitehead.

William Hughes, driver of the truck, was thrown beneath the train and narrowly escaped with his life. He received a broken arm and severe bruises. One of the horses was killed. According to Chief Whitehead the truck was closely following the fire engine which had crossed the tracks.

There are a number of very pretty candidates for the honor of presiding over the court, and by Saturday the campaign will have been concluded.

There are but a few days more, of course. The votes as they stand will be published daily in this paper from now until the end of the campaign.

THE UNFOLDING RECORD.

All the record of the trail of German agents in this country and in California was not introduced in the recent trial of the German, Hindu and American conspirators in the federal court in San Francisco. Other chapters of damning evidence was published before the trial and others will be published in the future. One document of more than passing interest is printed for the first time in the September World's Work.

It is a letter from German Lieutenant Von Brincken to the German Foreign Office in Berlin. It was written in San Francisco November 10, 1916, and reveals that the German consulate-general in that city organized and backed up the "Hindu Revolution" in India. Von Brincken headed his letter as a "Report Concerning My Activities at the Imperial Consulate in San Francisco, California." In it he wrote:

"I complied with that instruction and met Ram Chandra and other leaders of the Hindu Nationalists, and there laid the foundation for the entire Hindu work which has since then been carried out here on the Pacific. * * * Up to the present date I have filled this assignment absolutely alone. * * * Mr. Von Schack has seen Ram Chandra only a few times during the entire period, while Consul General Ropp saw the man only once. I had nothing to do with the ship matters in connection with the Hindu affair. Therefore, I am not responsible for the failure of the Maverick expedition. I had only planned the point of landing at Karachi. Besides, through messengers, I had prepared the population of the Punjab for the arrival of the Maverick."

Here is the typical German agent in communication with his masters in the Wilhelmstrasse. He is denying the responsibility of failure and claiming credit where success was achieved or expected. He had laid the foundation for the entire Hindu work in this State and had prepared "the population of the Punjab for the arrival of the Maverick," the neutrality breaking steamer that never reached its destination.

This Hindu Nationalist movement was the very same enterprise that Mr. William J. Bryan had the dull-witted indiscretion or the Chautauque-fee hunger to aid.

THE TRIBUNE reverts to the subject now because two years before the government took any action this newspaper repeatedly called attention to the unlawful and unbecoming activities of the Hindu junta. Now it is proved that they were directed from Berlin.

PASSING OF THE POET.

This is a utilitarian and not a poetical age. The great European war has produced no new poet, and no poem of merit from the few surviving rhymesters of the last century. Rudyard Kipling has written nothing equal to his "Cardess Beggar" which he gave to the world during the Boer war.

The singers of the olden time seem to have no successors. There is no Byron, no Moore, no Burns, no Tennyson, no Shelley, no Campbell, no Bryant, no Whitier, no Lowell, no Bayard Taylor in America.

It is strange that our Civil War did not elicit from the poets of that day any great battle lyrics. With the exception of Julia Ward Howe's Battle Hymn and some stirring dialect verses by Lowell there was no poem given to the world that in any degree depicted the sacrifices and the struggles of the war which ended when Lee placed his sword in the hand of Grant. And yet no sublimer subject for a mighty epic was ever afforded by history. The siege of Troy which Homer immortalized was child's play compared with that great struggle. And yet no great historic poem was written, no master hand struck the lyre.

Missouri has mapped out a course of action that other States might emulate with certain satisfaction to all immediately interested, and without any doubt to future generations. It is making a historical record of all its sons who have gone over there to battle, and all its daughters who have gone to help in any way. The work is being systematically performed under the direction of the State Historical Society. Photographs and biographies are the main features, though carefully prepared accounts of all activities in which the State has figured will be presented. Thus the State whence comes the man who has to be shown is doing something that is likely to show the way to other commonwealths.

DECIPHERING CIPHER MESSAGES.

When the sender of a telegram desires to guard its contents so that they shall remain unknown to all except the person to whom it is addressed, he can, by previously arranging with his correspondent for the use of a cipher, guard the secrecy of his message to a considerable extent. But he cannot guard it absolutely, for an expert decipherer of code messages can possess himself of its contents in a few hours.

The usual method of concocting ciphers is either by a transposition of the letters of the alphabet or by a word transposition arranged by substituting for the real word another word a certain number of words distant in the dictionary up or down from the real word.

Neither of these processes will baffle an expert cipher reader. There are but two conjunctions and only a limited number of prepositions in the English language, and it is built on five vowels and twenty-one consonants. The relative frequency of use of letters and of words has been accurately tabulated, with the help of this table a simple cipher and even a compound cipher can be deciphered by an expert with certainty and celerity. He finds what letter is most frequently used in the cipher. He substitutes for it the letter that, according to his table, is most frequently used in ordinary communications. He follows this up. Every word that is thus deciphered aids to decipher other words and the puzzle is speedily solved.

The telegraph service is now conducted by the United States government and if a cipher message is forwarded at all, it will only be after it has been deciphered and censored. During the Civil War the telegraph companies were forbidden to send any cipher message until it had been deciphered and censored by an official of the War Department.

It is related that on one occasion Commissary General Ingalls sent from his camp near Washington, a telegram to Senator Nesmith of Oregon, requesting the latter to visit him, partake of commissary whiskey and bring with him some cards and poker chips. Not desiring the telegraph operator to know of the invitation he wrote the despatch in the Chinook language, a knowledge of which had been acquired by both the general and the senator when they were old-time chums in Oregon.

The cipher experts in the war office were unable to read the despatch and it was referred to Secretary Stanton, who sent the telegram to Nesmith with a request that it be explained. The explanation contributed to the knowledge and the gaiety of the head of the War Department.

Considering that the symphony organization of San Francisco is experiencing some kind of a hitch, news of other such organizations as to their troubles and avoidance of complications is of interest. The Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, which has been heard here, taking account of the Boston situation wherein Conductor Muck has been interned, and of Chicago's requirement that all players become American citizens, has requested a pledge from its members of their unswerving loyalty to the United States; to support it in the war against Germany, and to subscribe to the extent of their ability to all government loans and to the support of such agencies of relief as the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., and the Knights of Columbus. This pledge is not made obligatory, but it can be seen that the attitude of the players toward it must go a considerable distance toward fixing their patriotic status.

Baseball is experiencing some queer angles. It might be expected that the war would claim the first attention of red-blooded men; but there ought to be a reasonably warm place in the young American heart for the national game, seeing that it was such an obsession before. The games of one of the semi-pro leagues has been drawing poorly, notwithstanding the clubs have excellent players, among whom are some professionals. It is now believed that the personal feature of the player has not been sufficiently emphasized. The personal equation goes a great way to promote enthusiasm at a ball game. When the fan is not sufficiently acquainted to call the player by his given name, or nickname, he soon loses interest. Plans are being devised to make the games more intimate.

The despatches tell that the Finns have made a compact with the Huns and agreed to render military assistance. The exact idea is not clear—whether that means the appearance of Finn troops on the battle fronts, or merely a sympathetic arrangement and quasi assistance. But whatever it means, Americans will revise their sympathy with the Finn. There had long been a sentiment here that he was having a very hard time under the thumb of his Russian oppressor; but if on the eve of his possible emancipation he has such a poor idea of the situation as to deliberately place his neck under the heel of a despot who is disclosing himself to be still more ruthless, there is too big a chance that sympathy is wasted in that direction.

NOTES and COMMENT

"New star in the heavens due to celestial catastrophe." Heading to an astronomical news despatch from Pasadena. A mass has been cast off and is whirling through space. Comment might be made that in the celestial reaches they have the start of earth. The malignant exorcism has been loosened here, but has not yet been sloughed off.

Man in New York is arrested for sitting on the Stars and Stripes. It is necessary to be extra circum-spect in these days. Care is not always taken to differentiate inadvertence from sedition.

National ball players delivered a mighty swat to the national game in their antics over their share of the world series. The great army of fans, obsessed as they are with performances on the diamond, are likely to realize from this as they have not realized before to what lengths the game has become commercialized.

We are having a surfeit of holidays, three occurring in the first half of this month. As one of them is a war observance, and there are likely to be others from this cause, it might be reasonable to forego those that are without such significance during the war. Very important war presses.

Liberia swings in line against the kaiser. Liberia may not overweigh in process, but adds to the array of nations against Hunnishness, which now numbers thirty-two, if we have kept the right tally.

The position of Jo Snyder, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, is attracting increased attention because of this Governor's imbrogllo. It is expected by his friends that disappointed Democrats and disgruntled people generally will adopt him as a fetish. So far he is lone and lorn, but this isolation may work out to his advantage.

Bulgaria and Turkey are close to war split. Friendships among the Balkan nations are always precarious. They may join efforts against a foe that they coincidentally happen at enmity with, but if they triumph they are sure to fall out over the spoil and fight each other.

The Federal Grand Jury at Sacramento has returned indictments against nineteen I. W. W. Right enough as far as it goes, but there is a distinct feeling that it does not go far enough. Long-drawn-out prosecutions of these people are not effective in staying their activities.

The distance has been made in ten hours between Chicago and New York by postal airplane. Roads had reduced it to eighteen hours, and we thus see that the annihilation of distance is steadily proceeding. A hundred years ago it took the best part of a month to negotiate the distance.

Recent pictures of Quentin Roosevelt show that he has inherited the dental distinction that is the eternal joy of the cartoonist.

Senator Johnson is coming home, but the main show is over. His presence earlier would no doubt have been variously relished, though there are still different opinions as to just where.

The conscription of labor is being discussed. It will be strange if it shall be found necessary to force people to work, considering the inducement that is held out everywhere in wages.

Tough on the dentist. Some of them have been doing free work straightening up soldiers with military teeth, but they have been notified that such gratuitous and patriotic service will not be reckoned as mitigating their chances in the draft. A man is not to be placated by an improved show of dental ivory.

SPIRIT OF THE STATE PRESS

Who says woman jurors are too chicken hearted to assume the grave responsibilities of important trials? Up in Sonora, Wednesday, three women sitting on a murder jury voted to condemn the defendant to death on the gallows. The crime was marked by extreme brutality and if capital punishment was ever justifiable, surely it was so in this case.—Stockton Record.

Two autos occupied by strangers in this locality were mixed up with a peculiar accident last Sunday. The woman was blown off. The machine was stopped and she walked back about 200 yards to get it. When starting to return to the car another machine came along and she was asked to ride up to the car. She stepped on the sideboard and on arriving at her car she jumped off while the machine was still in motion. She was thrown down and her face struck her own car and she sustained a severe cut below the right eye and down over the cheek.—Solano Courier.

The champion patriotic hen is today in the possession of Timothy J. Tuffey of La Mesa. Mr. Tuffey announces that this particular hen has formed the habit of laying elongated eggs in the shape of cart ridges.—San Diego Union.

The miscreant who set fire to the big Hartford cannery last month ought to be stood against a wall or given life sentence at hard labor. A German spy is an estimable person compared to the destroyer of the country's foodstuffs.—Hartford Sentinel.

ARMORED CARS IN DESERT.
The appearance of armored cars in the desert struck terror in Senussi hearts, and the whole country was soon covered with men and camels trekking off to the southwest. On getting through the camp the cars went on independently, shooting all loaded camels and men with machine guns. Two of these camels carried mixed loads of petrol and high explosive shells. The perforated petrol cans caught fire, and the shells exploded, which made the camp followers fall on their knees, beat the ground with their foreheads and call on Allah's aid.

"The Turkish gunners stuck to their guns like good men. When we passed them without killing them they turned round and continued firing at us, so that we had to go back and finish them," one of the officers told me. The cars collected three mountain guns and three machine guns, with one-quarter of a million rounds of small-arm ammunition and several boxes of shells. Two of the cars stood by all night to protect the camels, and the remainder retraced their tracks to Solihum to find our infantry in occupation. The Senussi did not venture on Aziza again.—From "The Desert Campaigns," by W. T. Massey (Putnam's).

WATER THE BIRDS.

To the Editor of The Tribune:
I would like to call your attention to the fact that since we can no longer water our lawns and gardens the main supply of drinking water for our song birds is cut off. If your subscribers will supply dishes of water for the birds in shaded localities in their yards it will save the lives of many of them. A shallow dish of water with a few pebbles in the bottom will be much enjoyed for bathing. Respectfully yours,

HEALTH AND HAPPINESS

What the Pupil of the Eye Sometimes Discloses to the Doctor.

By DR. LEONARD K. HIRSHBERG
A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins University.)

The tiny knothole in your back yard fence gives you a sneaking view of your neighbor's garden. The crack of peep-hole in the fence at the baseball grounds presents a broader view to your retina. The hole in the theater curtain gives you a large scene of the world's stage in front of the footlights.

Each of these tiny apertures are of fixed diameter and circumference. They are therefore inelastic and not very adaptable.

Not so the little peep-hole of each of your eyes. These widen or contract, expand and narrow in accordance with the needs of your retina to see near or distant objects, outlines, colors and perspectives.

The color of these little peep-holes or pupils of your eyes, their size, form, symmetry, regularity of outline, equality and elasticity tells the alert physician just what may be wrong with your health.

The pupil is, after all, only a window or opening in the colored curtain or iris at the front of the eyeball. If it is in the center, is round in shape and equal in size to the other pupil, nothing is usually amiss. When, however, the pupil is not circular in outline there is either some general or local disease present.

Sometimes an indentation in the pupil is present at birth. This means that the iris is in part missing. It is called a "coloboma." An operation, called an "iridectomy," to cut away a part of the iris, may show a similar condition.

As a rule, an irregular pupil commonly indicates some inflammatory process or injury, which has attacked the iris.

Then the form of any one's pupil is like a mirror that it may be due to distinguish it from that which makes it stick to the lens behind it. This appearance is the chief and most reliable symptom with which to distinguish iritis from mth at eyeball disease called acute glaucoma. A pupil shaped like a pear generally means an accident to the eye or a perforation of the eyeball by an ulcer.

Black is the normal color of the pupil, whether your eyes be blue or brown. Any change in this black is trouble.

If the pupil appears orange, yellowish or pale red, there may be a tumor in the eyeball. A whitish gray pupil, according to Professor Aaron Brav of Philadelphia, is nearly always the result of a cataract.

A greenish pupil points to glaucoma. This disease is called "green star."

When the retina is partly detached there is a grayish pupil with some light red streaks passing over it. A red pupil points to hemorrhage into the eye.

The size of the pupil is a source of information to well trained doctors. Near-sighted persons have larger pupils than far-sighted ones. Widely dilated pupils in bright light point to brain tumor or pressure.

The use of heroin, morphine and other drugs derivatively cause the pupils to become pin-point in size.

If the pupil acts, expands and contracts as you accommodate your sight to distance, convergence and light, all is well.

Whether or not an unsolicited nomination on the Democratic ticket, when the candidate was defeated for the nomination on the Republican ticket by the party in which he is registered, can be recognized and the name of the nominee placed on the ballot, is the question just now agitating the partisans of the south.

The proposition was not the controversy which it appeared to be. It was the Rolph-Henry-Stephens contest, decided by reason of the fact that the Democratic nomination of a Republican candidate had been secured. Rolph had secured the Democratic nomination and his name was on the ballot, but in this county the name was written in.

There were three candidates in the Thirty-fourth district, J. Leonard, Rosa was a candidate against A. E. Peltier, mayor of San Leandro, and secured the nomination by a big margin of majority. But the Democratic nomination was by a written-in vote. It is contended that as he was not a Democrat, he is ineligible for the nomination and that part of the vote should be taken from that of Mayor Rolph and be cast for him.

The vote for the Democratic nomination was very close between the two, Rose receiving 55 to Pelton's 64. Pelton has not declared his intention in the matter of demanding that his name go on the ballot as the Democratic candidate, and it is presumed that he is waiting for the decision in the Rolph-Heney case.

Soldier's Wife Is Killed by Collision

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—Mrs. Chester M. Franklin, formerly known as Ruth Darling, motion picture actress, is dead as the result of an auto accident in which she was crushed together at Polk and Geary streets. She died at the Central emergency hospital, where she was taken after the crash. Mrs. Franklin at first thought that she was Gracie Darling, another picture star, this mistake being cleared up when friends of the dead woman arrived.

A car driven by D. H. Evans of the Pressey hotel crashed into another of the accident. Mrs. Franklin was walking, when she was struck by the car, which was standing on the sidewalk. She was hurled against an electric light pole by the impact. Her husband is a soldier in the army. Mrs. Franklin, as Ruth Darling, played with the Balboa features and with Douglas Fairbanks, giving up the picture work to make room for her husband's entering the army was a local theatrical man.

'Man to Man' Topic at Rotary Club Talk

The lunch was largely attended by members of the membership displaying blue cards of registration throughout the meal. In fact, every card was asked from almost every part of the room.

Secretary Howard Schaeffer says the membership of the club members are under 45.

at the next meeting of the board.

At the same time that the board is considering the matter on adequate independent water supply, concerning themselves with a suggestion to develop their own light and power plant, the board is also considering that can be installed and maintained on the basis of saving considerable over the
